Springfield, Illinois – Mayor Jim Langfelder, together with the city Aldermen and Alderwomen, announced today the complete schedule for the next round of Strategic Ward Planning meetings. These annual meetings are conducted by outside facilitators who gather information from attendees about new items that have developed over the past year, along with sharing ideas about continuing the city’s progress. The forums also provide an avenue for residents and businesses to give input on the direction of the city, to help create a cohesive strategy for Springfield, and allow citizens to become more engaged in city government. City department representatives will also be present at all of the meetings.
